A TRIP TO THE DESERT

As the COVID-19 pandemic stabilized in China, iLen chose Ningxia, a sparsely populated province, as our annual travel destination after a thorough safety evaluation. It offered our staff, who stay indoors for more than half a year, an opportunity to spend some time outdoors and breathe the fresh air.

Ningxia is another-worldly place in the northwest of China and has a reputation as the last frontier in the north. It is the birthplace of the Yellow River civilization and the home of the Western Xia dynasty. As the verses say, "In the vast desert, a solitary column of smoke rises straight. Over the long river the setting sun looms round." For southerners like us, this place is mysterious and is characterized by expansiveness, vastness and magnificence native to the northwest China.

When we stood in the Shapotou Tourist Zone, Zhongwei, an endless desert spread out in front of us, and our mother river, the Yellow River, flowed beneath our feet. The impressive desert and majestic Yellow River were together. It was magical.

Though not large, Ningxia brought us so much pleasure; though short, our trip left us with lasting memories. iLen has faced many challenges because of the epidemic, but we must continue to live our lives, work hard and find happiness. We are not afraid of these challenges and always have the desire to find joy in all we do. That is the spirit of ILEN people. May joy be always with you.

TESTIMONIALS

The client was extremely impressed with the amount of detail that iLen provided in their explanations of their changes. The team was very patient with each round of queries from the client and delivered their responses in a very timely fashion. Both the client and the SAM were so pleased with their work that they are now working to have iLen as the dedicated vendor for all the client's zh-CN projects going forward. Thank you so much, team, and keep up the great work!
